Revolabs Announces Strategic Partnership with Europe's Largest Video Communications Distributor, Imago Group PLC

First to Offer New Revolabs Fusion™ Product in UK

MAYNARD, Mass., June 26, 2008 -- Revolabs, the leading provider of wireless audio products for enhancing collaboration, today announced that it will extend its product reach in Europe, through a partnership with Imago, the UK's leading specialist video communications distributor. As part of the agreement, Imago will resell the Revolabs Fusion product to British resellers and systems integrators.

Revolabs Fusion System comes in a compact, good-looking enclosure that is pre-programmed with all of the software necessary to function immediately. Users simply plug Fusion into a power outlet, plug a cable into a phone line or a video-conferencing system and begin using the wireless microphones. The product supports both the regular Revolabs Solo Wireless Microphones as well as the Revolabs RF-Armor™ Wireless Microphones which are impervious to Radio Frequency (RF) interference.

Revolabs MaxFlex™ technology allows the Solo Wireless Microphones to be interchangeable and seamless for multiple applications. The Fusion system comes in an eight and a four microphone version, and the end user may choose the combination and the types of wireless microphones desired: wearable, tabletop, or XLR. Imago will offer the two packaged systems for out-of-the-box installation -- an eight microphone solution consisting of six tabletops and two wearable wireless microphones, and a four microphone Fusion system with three tabletops and one wearable wireless microphone.

“We are happy to welcome Imago to our roster of expert resellers throughout the world,” said Rick Larsen EMEA Vice President at Revolabs. “This is the first phase of a strategic partnership with Imago Group. Imago has solid relationships as a market leading Video Conferencing distributor and a proven record of success in the EMEA marketplace. We look forward to growing our business in the region with them.”

Peter Nice, Head of New Business at Imago, had been looking for a wireless audio offering for Imago’s Video Conferencing reseller community and is confident about the launch. “We have been under pressure to find a high quality audio solution for both existing and new installations. Revolabs Fusion not only provides exceptional audio quality, unmatched flexibility and great value, it also overcomes potential health and safety concerns caused by unsightly wires trailing across meeting room floors. We believe Revolabs Fusion will revolutionize the microphone market”
