Revolabs Expands Distribution Channel with Jenne Distributors

Jenne Distributors to Sell Revolabs Wireless Microphone Systems to Thousands of Telephony Resellers

MAYNARD, Mass., December 16, 2008 -- Revolabs, the leading provider of wireless audio products for enhancing collaboration, today announced a distribution agreement with Jenne Distributors, Inc., one of the largest distributors of networking, telephony, and video conferencing devices in North America.

“Expanding our distribution channel with a networking, telephony and video giant like Jenne Distributors will significantly increase our reach,” said Gregory Shalov, Revolabs Vice President, Americas. “Businesses often look to a single source reseller or dealer for all of their voice, data, and video needs. Our relationship with Jenne allows us more exposure to this market through their broad national sales force and inside sales team. Revolabs is very pleased about this new relationship and we look forward to growing this segment of our business through Jenne Distributors.”

“We are excited to work with Revolabs, as our first wireless microphone supplier, to promote their products to our dealer and value added resellers,” said Vincent Piccolomini, Jenne Distributors, Vice President. “The Revolabs wireless microphone product line is a natural fit with our existing portfolio of networking, telephony and video conferencing products. The Revolabs microphone products are wireless, secure, rechargeable, while providing great audio which is easily installed, all of which are essential benefits to our resellers and ultimately, the end-user. Jenne is committed to offering products and support services that assure resellers will have all they need to deliver real and innovative solution into the marketplace and we are very pleased to be working with Revolabs.”

Jenne Distributors is offering the Revolabs Fusion™, the Solo Single Channel, and the xTag USB Wireless Microphone Systems to all of their channel partners. Jenne will provide technical support, and ongoing sales and technical training on the Revolabs products.
