

Revolabs Announces Partnership with Canadian Distributor, DataVisual Marketing

MAYNARD, Mass., February 10, 2009 -- Revolabs, the leading provider of wireless audio products for enhancing collaboration, today announced that it will extend its product reach in North America, through a partnership with DataVisual Marketing, a leading Canadian distributor of top quality audio visual products. As part of the agreement that commences on February 16th, DataVisual Marketing will resell the Revolabs Wireless Microphone product family to Canadian resellers and systems integrators.

In addition to selling the Revolabs solutions, Datavisual Marketing will also provide sales support, dealer support, customer service and technical assistance.

“We are happy to welcome DataVisual Marketing to our roster of expert resellers throughout the world,” said Gregory Shalov, Revolabs Vice President, Sales Americas. “DataVisual Marketing has solid relationships and a proven record of success in the Canadian marketplace. We look forward to growing our business in the region with them.”

“Revolabs’ product family is known and well respected for the quality of the audio it delivers and the flexibility of the wireless configurations,” said Benoit Kislich-Lemyre, General Manager, DataVisual Marketing. “We are pleased to offer these innovative wireless microphone solutions to our customers.”
