

Revolabs to Offer Manufacturer's Training Course at InfoComm09

First 50 Registered Course Participants Receive a Free Gift

MAYNARD, MA June 10, 2009 -- Revolabs, the leading provider of wireless audio products for enhancing collaboration, announced today that they are furthering their commitment to customer training and education by sponsoring a manufacturer's training course at InfoComm09 in Orlando, FL.

Course number MT73, Installing Revolabs Wireless Microphone Systems, will be presented on Friday, June 19th from 10:30am until noon. The course instruction covers the technical aspects of installing Revolabs Microphone Systems, including the new Executive HD System. The course entails the configuration of multiple systems within one room and multiple rooms in close proximity with each other, extending antennas, connections to videoconferencing systems and phones, cabling, and general troubleshooting.

The course will be presented by Eric Spata, a Revolabs Sales Engineer who has over ten years of industry experience designing and installing AV equipment. The first 50 registered course participants will receive a free gift that is extremely useful in cutting all wires. InfoComm has arranged to make the training course practically free, as participants pay only $25 on the Manufacturers' Training session, and then receive $25 back to spend at the InfoComm Show Store.

For more information visit <http://www.infocommshow.org> and follow the education link, or send email to info@revolabs.com.

Press Contact:
Susan Zaney
Vice President, Marketing
Revolabs
szaney@revolabs.com
978-450-5335